Stocken introduces Midlincoln Research token – Organic Investment Analytics

- Midlincoln Research is a medium stage start up in investment analytics and fintech subindustry its key platform is the midlincoln.com. Company also operates co-workings and business incubators to develop and promote craft based businesses. Midlincoln in various partnerships runs a set of funds including its flagship Midlincoln Craft Fund providing investors with opportunity to co-invest into craft startups.
- Midlincoln publishes research on key asset classes: equities, FICC, funds and indexes. It also covers macro and politics and publishes company reports.
- Midlincoln is always full of investment ideas, and idea generation is in the core of its business model.
- Midlincoln had developed unique machine automation, learning and AI tools which dramatically reduce the costs of its analytics while at the same time it was able to drastically improve quality of its research by the same set of tools.
- But Midlincoln goes far beyond analytics. Its goal is to seed, develop and promote its own little and unique startups with high and ambitious growth and potential. The uniqueness of these startups they all depend on advanced people skills and some sort of craft is the core of these businesses. For example you need to be a damn good mechanic to produce cars, you have to be a very good art designer to produce jewelry, a good agronomic knows how to run an agricultural business while good athletes can knows what it takes to grow other good athletes. Investors could co-invest with Midlincoln into these businesses via ML Craft Fund.
- Midlincoln also operates and provides advisory services for a set of different funds a junior gold mining fund, a diamond mining fund and an alternative energy fund.
